Police lay charges of Internet luring

ONLINE CRIME A Sackville resident faces two charges of using the Internet to lure a child, police said yesterday.

Officers with the municipality's Internet child exploitation squad arrested the Toronto native in Bedford, two weeks ago after seizing a computer from his Wilson Lake Drive home, police said.

"It was an undercover operator who was posing as an online minor," Halifax RCMP spokesman Cpl. Joe Taplin explained.

"They started getting into conversation and there was enough evidence established there to obtain a search warrant."

Police said they released Michael Taboski, 31, on conditions, adding he is to appear in Dartmouth provincial court July 9.

CTV erred in Dion clip: Ruling

POLITICS CTV Atlantic must admit on air that it broke the Radio Television News Director Association's code of ethics during last fall's federal election campaign, a decision released yesterday says.

The station must tell its viewers that it violated the article "regarding decency, consideration and conduct" for broadcasting outtakes from an interview anchor Steve Murphy conducted with Liberal Leader Stephane Dion leading up to the Oct. 14 vote, according to the Canadian Broadcast Standards Council decision. CTV Atlantic aired three false starts from the Oct. 9 interview, arguing the public had the right to see everything. The CBSC says it investigated after receiving 39 complaints, many stating that Murphy's question regarding the economy was "awkwardly worded."

But the CBSC says the main problem was that CTV Atlantic chose to air Dion stumbling over the question, even though the station had promised the politician that part of the clip wouldn't be broadcast.

CTV Atlantic news director Jay Witherbee pointed out yesterday the adjudicators also found the broadcast was accurate and objective. "Four of the five codes (examined) went in our favour," he said.

"The CBSC acknowledges no violation on Steve Murphy's part," he said, adding the station stands behind their newsman. "CTV is deeply concerned by the tone and the content of the council's decision."

Promises, promises

Party leaders question opponents on platforms

PAUL MCLEOD
paul.mcleod@metronews.ca

Liberal Leader Stephen McNeil isn't promising balanced budgets, and said yesterday the other party leaders are deceiving Nova Scotians when they promise them.

McNeil singled out NDP Leader Darrell Dexter's vow to balance the budget as something impossible to do because no one knows how far the province is in deficit.

"You can't guarantee you're going to balance the budget, as he has. You can't."

You're misleading Nova Scotians," McNeil proclaimed.

"It would be like you saying you're going to pay off your mortgage in five years, having no idea what your mortgage is worth."

Premier Rodney MacDonald has said he would balance the budget this year. Dexter has said that is impossible, but his party would balance the budget starting next year and from then on.

Dexter said if elected he would immediately audit the province's books to find out what it would take to present a balanced budget. McNeil said Dexter's promise makes no sense until that happens.

"He's promising people he's going to balance the budget when he simply doesn't have the information," McNeil said. "He's doing that because he knows he's vulnerable on the economy and he doesn't have a solution for it."

Dexter was campaigning in Cape Breton yesterday and when reached over the phone laughed off McNeil's comments. He said the NDP platform was built to be affordable, and he would make sure his government doesn't leave debt to be paid by future generations.

"Look at parties out there offering half a billion dollars in new spending promises ... and here we are the party that has a very modest plan recognizing the very difficult time that we're under," Dexter said. "Priorities are the reason we're not doing what the Liberals are doing, which is trying to be all things to all people."

"He's promising people he's going to balance the budget when he simply doesn't have the information."

A search warrant was executed just after 6 a.m. at a Heathside Crescent residence, according to a Halifax Regional Police media release.

Premier defiant in face of odds

MacDonald dismisses Grits as impact players in election, despite numbers

PAUL MCLEOD
paul.mcleod@metronews.ca

How many parties are in this provincial election race? Depends who you ask.

As the campaign kicked off, Premier Rodney MacDonald declared it was a "two-horse race" between his Conservatives and Darrell Dexter's NDP. A couple weeks later, a poll showed the Liberals were ahead of the Tories in second place, with the NDP in first.

That prompted federal Liberal Leader Michael Ignatieff to agree it was a two-way race when he was in Halifax last weekend. But, unlike MacDonald, Ignatieff said it was a race between the NDP and Liberals.

Yesterday, MacDonald was sticking to his earlier decree.

"I believe this is an election that will come down

Premier Rodney MacDonald runs up the steps of Province House after his Tory government was defeated earlier this month. MacDonald still maintains that the provincial election remains a two-horse race between the NDP and his Conservatives.

to a choice between our party and the NDP at the end of the day," he told reporters after speaking to business people in Dartmouth.

He also repeated a phrase he first said at last week's leader's debate: "This is my fourth election. I've said it before that the other elections have gone to Game 7. This one will go to overtime."

If that's the case, the Tories are down by a couple of goals, according to Stephen McNeil. The provincial Liberal leader said his party is very much in the race, despite what MacDonald is claiming.

"The premier is the only person in Nova Scotia who believes that," McNeil said.

However, McNeil didn't echo Ignatieff's statement. Instead he said all three parties are strong in different ridings.

NDP Leader Darrell Dexter had no interest in wading into the debate.

"If my opponents want to squabble over who's in the race and who's out of the race, that's up to them," Dexter said.

"I'm going to focus on my central message, which is we need a province that is able to keep young people here to build their future."

Witnesses sought in man's shooting death

KRISTEN LIPSCOMBE

CRIME Police are hoping potential witnesses in the shooting death of Jerrell Wright will step up to the plate and help them track down his killer.

The 19-year-old man died last week at the Queen Elizabeth II Health Sciences Centre in Halifax, a week after being shot on Clarence Street in North Preston.

"There were people there that evening that aren't coming (forward) to police," Halifax RCMP spokesman Cpl. Joe Taplin said yesterday.

"There are a lot of rumours going (around) that this individual could have been an innocent bystander, but we don't have that information," he added.

Taplin said police know several shots were fired

May 13, adding shell casings they found in the HRM residential community have been sent to a laboratory for ballistics testing.

Police won't confirm what Wright's fatal injuries were, but several media outlets have reported he was shot in the forehead.

In his obituary, the Dartmouth teen is described as a "kind, loving (and) respectful" person who "made a difference to everyone who was in contact with him." He enjoyed basketball and hockey and spent some time working at the North Preston Community Centre, it says.

His funeral was yesterday afternoon at St. Thomas Baptist Church in North Preston.

Major crime investigators are asking anyone with information to call police or Crime Stoppers anonymously at 1-800-222-8477.

Chamber gives city thumbs up on budget

GRADING Halifax Regional Municipality's budget for 2009-10 has received a strong overall grade from the Halifax Chamber of Commerce.

In a media release sent out yesterday, the Halifax Chamber of Commerce's Municipal Affairs Committee graded the HRM budget with an overall score of B.

The chamber gave the budget an A for debt management, B for spending aligned with the chamber's strategic priorities, C for effective investment and spending and C-minus for commercial tax competitiveness. That led to the overall score of B.

In terms of specifics, the chamber said it was happy with the focused spending and debt management, and with the investment in Metro Transit and the multi-year financial strategy.

They say the budget fell short in preparing the city for the downturn in tax revenue that the chamber expects to take place in 2011.

Halifax regional council passed its budget Tuesday night, with a lone "nay" coming from Coun. Andrew Younger of East-Dartmouth-The Lakes.

To purchase tickets, phone 451-1221 or visit ticketatlantic.com.

Cirque du Soleil's Alegria began its two-week run in Halifax last night, which was also Zoe McLean's first time performing in the world-renowned show.

"There's a lot of training but it's what we're here to do," McLean said while taking a break during an afternoon training session yesterday to prepare for last night's arena tour premiere. "I train like an hour and a half a day on the act and then I have other cues that involve just practising."

Even though it's her inaugural performance for Cirque du Soleil, McLean said she's "more excited than nervous."

To prepare for the show she spends most of her time on trampolines and other equipment she uses without music or costumes.

McLean said she doesn't mind training for hours each day because she's been doing it for a while now.

Competing in gymnastics for Great Britain during much of her childhood, Cirque du Soleil is more about fun and performance than precision, she said.

"It's about being upside down," McLean said inside the Halifax Metro Centre. "And flying and doing other things people can't, and just showing them that everything is possible."

McLean is seen as two different characters in the show — first as a nymph, which are fairy-like and graceful, and then as a Bronx, which are members of a street gang.

Although she will be doing extreme gymnastic moves on what's called a power track, she said it's not the most difficult part of the show.

"I have four minutes to get out of one complete costume, get into another costume, do the makeup and go," she explained.

The 55 artists for Alegria are a diverse group, with "at least one performer from every continent."

SuperNova posts big gains after venue switch

FESTIVAL Eastern Front Theatre's 16th annual SuperNova Theatre enjoyed its best year ever with large crowds after moving to Neptune Studio Theatre to showcase its productions.

A release by SuperNova yesterday said they enjoyed a 24 per cent increase in attendance and a 43 per cent jump in box office sales when compared to last year.

The event previously took place at Alderney Landing Theatre in Dartmouth, but organizers went with Neptune's Studio Theatre in Halifax for the 11-day May event this year and organizers believe it played a part in the higher numbers.

The venue is intended to be used again for next year's festival, which takes place April 29 to May 10, 2010.

SuperNova producers also attributed the success of this year's show to quick turnaround time between plays that gave people the opportunity to stay longer and see more shows. METRO HALIFAX

Sometimes just saying "Hello" can make all the difference in the world for a teen who's new to Canada.

That's the message behind a collection of videos made by local high school students that will hit the airwaves soon.

Grade 12 students from Citadel and Dartmouth high schools teamed up last fall to create Settling into Schools, a collection of short videos meant to bring awareness to the struggles facing teenage immigrants.

The YMCA and Pink Dog Productions, a local video production company, collaborated with the students to make the videos, helping them hone both their message and their filmmaking skills.

"For us (the value of the experience) was really learning as Canadians how to welcome other students to our school, and we had a chance to see their side of the story," Ali Richardson said at the video's launch event yesterday at Dartmouth High School.

Richardson, 17, was part of the class that wrote and starred in the videos.

Huachu Huang, also 17, was in the same class and helped make the video. Having moved to Canada from Taiwan about two years ago, he said he has experienced first-hand some of the issues the videos address.

"For immigrant students, English is their second language. It's not easy for them to open up and be outgoing," Huang said.

Settling into Schools includes three public service announcements, which could soon be airing on major Canadian networks. There are also several videos for teachers to use as instructional tools, which are available online through Pink Dog Productions.

"Teachers can take (the videos) with the lesson plan, and they can change kids' minds," said Dawn Harwood-Jones, who co-owns Pink Dog Productions. "So these few kids here, who worked together on this project, are going to affect kids all over Canada."

Liberals take hawkish approach in wake of deficit

Smelling blood, Liberal Leader Michael Ignatieff and other opposition politicians seized on the Conservatives' $50-billion deficit bombshell to accuse the Harper government of failing Canadians on the economy.

Ignatieff called on Prime Minister Stephen Harper to fire Finance Minister Jim Flaherty and sounded a new, more hawkish note yesterday about possibly defeating the Conservative minority and forcing an early election.

While Harper ignored the demand to fire his finance minister, Ignatieff expressed growing frustration with the Conservative minority government on key economic issues.

"There isn't a number that comes out of that man's mouth that Canadians can believe."

Liberal Leader Michael Ignatieff, on Finance Minister Jim Flaherty

Those include reforming employment insurance, speeding stimulus spending and the changing deficit projections. "We've got an EI crisis to which they are not responding. Second point, the stimulus is not out the door ... third, the public finances are in free fall and he (Flaherty) can't tell us where the bottom is," Ignatieff said.

"On these three grounds, it's getting very difficult to work with the government," he told reporters after the Commons question period.

The Liberals used the revelation of the larger than expected deficit number to take aim at Flaherty, accusing the finance minister of misleading Canadians dating back to last fall as the effects of the slow-down started to bite.

"There isn't a number that comes out of that man's mouth that Canadians can believe," Ignatieff said.

Canadian lifts off for International Space Station

A Russian spacecraft blasted off yesterday on a mission that will double the permanent crew of the International Space Station (ISS) to six for the first time.

Expedition 20 will also be the first when all five international partner space agencies — NASA, the Canadian Space Agency, Russia's Roskosmos, Japan's JAXA and the European Space Agency — are represented on board the ISS.

Canadian Robert Thirsk of New Westminster, B.C., Belgian Frank de Winne and Russian Roman Romanenko lifted off from the Russian-owned Baikonur cosmodrome in Kazakhstan as planned, an official at Mission Control outside Moscow said.

The Soyuz TMA-15 spacecraft reached its targeted orbit of about 200 to 242 kilometres above the $100 billion US.

Studying a medieval women's magazine

HISTORY The year: 1457. Somewhere in England a woman sits by the hearth, reading snippets of medical recipes, romances and a tale by Chaucer.

The anthology, dedicated to women readers, is known today as Biblioteca Nazionale. Written in Middle English, it predates by centuries many modern women's magazines such as Chatelaine, Cosmopolitan and Redbook.

But just like modern women's magazines, it offers advice aplenty — everything from how to ease childbirth to how to lure a rabbit out of its warren.

The document, which is part of a collection in the Naples Library, was likely one of a growing number of books that were produced in the latter half of the Middle Ages, says medieval specialist Dr. James Weldon, soon to be chair of the English and Film Studies department at Wilfrid Laurier University.

Weldon stumbled upon it while doing research on Lybeaus Desconus — one of the romance tales in the anthology.

"It really is a valuable manuscript," said Weldon. And it reveals a lot about women in the Middle Ages.

"There are very few secular vernacular books oriented towards women," said Weldon, who presented a paper on the anthology at a meeting of the Canadian Society of Medievalists, part of the annual Social Sciences and Humanities Congress in Ottawa.

The manuscript is quite clearly directed at wealthy, aristocratic women, he said, particularly because there are references to spices such as cinnamon, which was very expensive and hard to get then.

In total, there are 140 recipes or prescriptions in the anthology; most are medical but some are of a more domestic nature giving instructions on how to make sealing wax, quince preserve and a broth thickener.

The recipes all incorporate elements that were considered appropriate for women's activities, Weldon said. TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Baby formula becoming a hot item among thieves

THEFT At a Pharma Plus in Toronto, assistant manager Ruth Maravilla keeps the powdered baby formula close to where she sits, puts two security tags on each can and tries to keep a minimal number of tins on the shelves. The formula still gets stolen.

"It goes missing all the time," said Maravilla. "We do everything we can, but formula is one of the things shoplifters go for." Baby formula is costly — about $30 in powdered form.

A security guard was stabbed Tuesday in suburban Toronto when she tried to stop a man fleeing Zellers with formula.

Dr. Deborah O'Connor, director of clinical dietetics at the Hospital for Sick Children, says feeding a baby is very expensive. "For families with low income, it can make a hole in the wallet."

A program called Women Infants and Children provides U.S. low-income families with free formula. O'Connor said it's estimated half the babies in that country are fed under the program.

"There's no program like that in Canada," she said. TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

France denies snubbing Queen

France denied yesterday that it had snubbed Queen Elizabeth after Britain said she had not been invited to a ceremony marking the 65th anniversary of the D-Day landings. N. Korea threatens South

North Korea, facing international censure for this week's nuclear test, threatened yesterday to attack the South after it joined the U.S.-led Proliferation Security Initiative (PSI) plan to check vessels suspected of carrying equipment for weapons of mass destruction.

Adding to tension in the region, South Korean media reported that Pyongyang had restarted a plant that makes plutonium that can be used in nuclear bombs.

In Moscow, news agencies said that Russia is taking precautionary measures because it fears mounting tensions over the test could escalate to war.

U.S. Secretary of State Hillary Clinton reaffirmed

South Korean pro-unification activists chant slogans at a rally denouncing the government for its decision yesterday to participate fully in a U.S.-led nonproliferation campaign, the Proliferation Security Initiative (PSI), in front of the Foreign Ministry in Seoul yesterday.

U.S. commitments to allies Japan and South Korea, said North Korea was behaving in a "provocative and belligerent manner" toward its neighbours, and that there were consequences to such behaviour.

The UN is debating ways to punish Pyongyang for the test, decried as a major threat to regional stability as it brings the North closer to having a reliable nuclear bomb. REUTERS

Car bomb retaliation for strikes on Taliban: Officials

PAKISTAN Gunmen attacked a police headquarters in the Pakistani city of Lahore yesterday, setting off a car bomb that killed at least 24 people in what the government said was revenge for an offensive against the Taliban.

There was no claim of responsibility for the attack, which wounded nearly 300 people and caused extensive damage. It came after warnings of strikes in response to the army's attack in the Swat region.

"I believe that anti-Pakistan elements, who want to destabilize our country and see defeat in Swat, have now turned to our cities," Interior Minister Rehman Malik said.

The bomb, which officials said was a suicide attack, brought down a government ambulance service building and damaged a nearby office of the military's main intelligence agency. REUTERS

UN sinks forecast

The United Nations revised its 2009 global economic growth forecast down sharply yesterday, accounting for a deeper financial crisis that threatens to push unemployment past the 50 million mark.

In a mid-year update to its World Economic Situation and Prospects 2009 report issued in January, the United Nations now expects a global economic contraction of 2.6 per cent this year, compared to its prior worst case scenario of a drop of 0.5 per cent.

"The global credit crunch has continued straining the real economy worldwide," the report said.

A mild recovery in the World Gross Product is possible for 2010, but the UN

Department of Economic and Social Affairs (DESA) warned that risks of slow recovery remained.

"If financial markets do not unclog soon and if the fiscal stimuli do not gain sufficient traction, the recession would prolong in most countries with the global economy stagnating at lower welfare levels well into 2010," the report said.

DESA is forecasting 50 million unemployed over the next two years, a figure that "could easily double if the situation continues to deteriorate."

World trade volumes are expected to drop 11 per cent this year, the largest annual decline since the Great Depression, DESA said. The report also suggests if there was a more co-ordinated response to the crisis, the recovery would be stronger and swifter.

"The global credit crunch has continued straining the real economy worldwide."

is very unbalanced. Eighty per cent of the stimulus is concentrated in developed countries, while most developing countries lack the fiscal space to provide social protection and counteract the consequences of the crisis," the report said. REUTERS

People dressed as birds cross a street in Mexico City yesterday. Members of Mexico's Ecologist Green Party protested on International Migratory Bird Day against the illegal trafficking of birds.

30,000 homeless in Sudan

The United Nations called on south Sudan yesterday to stop a demolition campaign it said had left more than 30,000 people homeless in the region's capital.

South Sudan's capital Juba has had uncontrolled growth since the Christian and animist region ended its two-decade civil war with the Muslim north in 2005.

In recent months, authorities from the surrounding Central Equatoria state have sent in bulldozers and demolition crews to flatten of hundreds of temporary structures and shanty town shacks they said were not properly licensed.

The UN issued a report this week many people had not received proper warning before their properties were demolished, or enough compensation afterwards.

The peacekeeping operation mandated to watch over the implementation of the fragile north-south deal has called for the government to halt the demolitions and provide services, land and compensation to those who have lost their homes. REUTERS

Greenland ice melt could fuel sea rise

CLIMATE New York, Boston and other cities on the northeast coast could face a rise in sea level this century that would exceed forecasts for the rest of the planet if Greenland's ice sheet keeps melting as fast as it is now, researchers said yesterday.

The current rate of ice-melting in Greenland could send so much fresh water into the salty north Atlantic Ocean it could change the vast ocean circulation pattern sometimes called the conveyor belt. REUTERS

CONTROVERSY A Myanmar court rejected most of opposition leader Aung San Suu Kyi's witnesses yesterday, a move critics said was aimed at sabotaging her defence in a trial that could see her detained for five more years. The court allowed only one of four witnesses requested by her defence team who will testify today in the trial of a woman detained by military rulers for more than 13 of the past 19 years. "It is very unfair," said Nyan Win, one of Suu Kyi's lawyers. Critics say the trial is a charade to keep the charismatic National League for Democracy leader in detention during an election next year. REUTERS

Pin your happiness on bowling

Relating

Steve Collins

metronews.ca/collins

We spend a lot of time in this space parsing the pitfalls of life with your one and only, but what about everyone else? What about your relationships with family and friends, co-workers and neighbours, the vaguely familiar people you pass on the street?

Harvard researcher Robert D. Putnam, in Bowling Alone: The Collapse and Revival of American Community, argues the connections we form with others comprise "social capital," and produce tangible benefits.

Putnam's title comes from the disappearance of once-ubiquitous bowling leagues across America, which he sees as an indicator of a more general weakening of Americans' connections with friends, family and neighbours, and declining participation in churches, volunteer groups or political parties.

Signs of the increasing civic disengagement he chronicles south of the border can also be seen in Canada, where only 58.8 per cent of voters bothered showing up to the polls in last fall's election, our worst turnout since Confederation. We'd set the previous record for apathy, a 60.9 per cent turnout, in 2004.

On the web

All is not lost here, of course. Get your car stuck in the snow, and passing strangers are still likely to stop and push you out. That, too, is social capital.

Sure, we're social animals, and relating feels good, but the uses of social capital aren't all warm and fuzzy richness-of-life stuff. As Putnam points out, heaps of research shows you're more likely to get a job on the basis of who you know rather than what you know. The more, and the more varied, connections you have, the easier it is to get ahead.

In terms of social capital, as Putnam measures it, the benefits of joining a club are equivalent to doubling your income. Getting married is the same as quadrupling it.

So, do you know your neighbours well enough to gossip about them? When your phone rings, are you pretty sure it's another telemarketer? When was the last time you saw a member of your family who doesn't live in the same city, or one who does, for that matter?

Are you a connected and interconnected social capitalist pig, or a lone bowler?

Steve Collins offers his best guesses on relationships for Metro every two weeks.

The new attitude shift toward thriftiness

LifeCycle

Denise Rudnicki

Apparently I live on the cutting edge of a new trend. I don't have cable TV, air conditioning or even a dishwasher and that, says the Pew Research Center, means I am part of a "pervasive new creed of thrift" that is sweeping North America.

Pew surveyed American adults to determine what people consider a necessity and what they view as a luxury. The study was done after the markets crashed and people started losing their houses and jobs, so it isn't so surprising there's an attitude shift. When you watch your retirement savings evaporate and cannot make your mortgage payment, that spiffy new home entertainment system does start to look like a luxury you can live without.

Choosing between necessity and luxury is easy when you decide to live on a boat. Our move to a boat in Victoria's inner harbour was a lifestyle choice, motivated by upheaval on the job front and a longing for a simpler life. In three weeks, I divested myself of 30 years of possessions and became a convert to extreme thrift. And now it seems I am a bellwether for the entire continent.

The Pew study also found that people are changing their spending habits. More people are shopping in discount stores, cutting back on alcohol and cigarettes, doing their own home repairs, and planting vegetable gardens. I read the report, mentally checking off each one of these new habits.

We do not have cable, although we do have high-speed Internet. We have a small flat-screen TV we use for watching rented movies. There isn't room for major appliances. We rented a plot in a public garden to grow vegetables and have boxes on the dock for the herbs we like. We have library cards and use them. We do not buy anything that we do not absolutely need, which means we have not bought anything in the last six months.

Watch us. We are the trend-setters.

DOLLAR The Canadian dollar rallied to its highest level since early October around midday yesterday, hitting 90.11 U.S. cents, but late in the session it turned lower and relinquished a chunk of the sharp gains recorded in recent months.

BANKING Laurentian Bank of Canada reported a 16 per cent drop in its quarterly profit yesterday as provisions for bad loans rose and interest income declined, sending shares lower. Laurentian reported net income of $21.2 million for its second quarter ended April 30, compared with $25.1 million in the same period a year earlier.

AUTO Electric car maker Zenn Motor Co. posted a slightly wider second-quarter net loss as the downturn in the automotive sector hurt its rev-

GM tries to stay alive in Canada

Bankruptcy looming in U.S.

General Motors is desperately trying to keep its Canadian operations running as its parent heads towards bankruptcy court protection in the United States and possibly Canada during the next week, a top union leader says.

GM is even paying edgy suppliers in advance for parts to assure that production of popular models can continue at assembly plants during any court proceedings when payments might be in doubt, Ken Lewenza, president of the Canadian Auto Workers, said yesterday.

"They have indicated to us they are doing everything possible and in their power to avoid a Canadian shutdown," Lewenza said.

Chrysler LLC immediately shut down its operations in the U.S. and Canada earlier this month when it gained temporary court protection from creditors south of the border.

A temporary GM shutdown would cause thou-

Rejection

Yesterday, bondholders rejected an offer whereby they would exchange $27 billion US in debt for 10 per cent of a reorganized GM.

sands more layoffs here and even more damage to the reeling auto sector.

Lewenza explained GM wants to maintain output particularly at operations that build popular models, including the new Chevrolet Camaro sports car and Impala mid-size car in Oshawa, Ont., and the Chevrolet Equinox sport utility vehicle at the CAMI plant in Ingersoll, Ont.

A GM spokesperson would not comment on any production plans if the parent company pursues court protection.

But GM Corp. officials have said bankruptcy proceedings in the U.S. are probable within the next week. TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Statement by Saudi official lifts oil prices

MARKETS Oil prices hit a six-month high near $64 US a barrel yesterday after Saudi Arabia, OPEC's biggest member, said the global economy had strengthened enough to cope with oil at $75 to $80 a barrel.

U.S. crude oil for July delivery rose $1 to settle at $63.45 a barrel, after earlier touching $63.82, the highest level since mid-November. London Brent crude gained $1.26 to settle at $62.50 a barrel.

Saudi Oil Minister Ali al-Naimi, speaking on the eve of an OPEC meeting in Vienna, said oil prices would continue to rise and that the global economy was now strong enough to support this.

"The price rise is a function of optimism. Better things are coming in the future," Naimi said.

The minister said OPEC did not need to change its output policy. REUTERS

Wings give Pens a Cup final rematch

Stanley Cup
2009 Playoffs

Here we go again.

The Red Wings are back in the Stanley Cup finals to defend their title after Darren Helm scored the game-winning goal 3:58 into overtime, as Detroit vanquished Chicago 2-1 in Game 5 of the Western Conference finals at Joe Louis Arena in Detroit.

In the extra session, Red Wings defenceman Brett Lebda fired a shot from the point that caromed off the active boards to the left of Chicago goaltender Cristobal Huet. Tomas Holmstrom knocked it out of Huet's pads across the crease and Helm banged the puck into the wide-open net.

Coupled with Pittsburgh's win over Carolina in Game 4 of its Eastern final on Tuesday, the Red Wings and Penguins will meet for a second consecutive season for hockey's silver prize. Game 1 of the Stanley Cup finals is slated for Saturday in the Motor City. Detroit took the 2008 matchup in six games to claim its fourth Cup in 11 seasons.

Dan Cleary also scored for Detroit, which will try to become the first club to repeat as champions since they did it themselves in 1997 and '98. Chris Osgood made 30 saves for the win.

Detroit wrapped up the best-of-seven set last night despite the absence of two of its best players in forward Pavel Datsyuk, an MVP finalist, and six-time Norris Trophy-winning defenceman Nicklas Lidstrom. Lidstrom missed the last two games with an undisclosed lower-body injury, while Datsyuk has been out since Game 2 of this series with an injured foot.

Chicago goalie Nikolai Khabibulin remained sidelined with a lower-body injury that forced him to exit after the second period of Game 3.

Huet made his second straight start in goal for Chicago and finished with 44 saves in defeat.

Patrick Kane had the lone goal for the Blackhawks.

Barca downs United in one-sided final

Barcelona deposed Manchester United as European champions with a 2-0 victory forged by a superb display of controlled attacking soccer in the Champions League final yesterday.

Cameroon striker Samuel Eto'o struck the opener against the run of play after 10 minutes at the Stadio Olimpico when he cut past Nemanja Vidic with surprising ease and sent a low shot past United goalkeeper Edwin van der Sar at his near post.

Argentina's Lionel Messi added the second with a rare, and perfectly timed header after 70 minutes, sealing Barcelona's third European Cup win after their successes in 1992 and 2006.

Victory also completed a European and domestic treble for Barca in an extraordinary first season for coach

Pep Guardiola, who ended Alex Ferguson's dreams of making United the first side to retain the European Cup in the Champions League era.

The match, hailed as a "dream final" between two of Europe's greatest clubs, could not live up to its expectations because United were so far below their best.

They did have their chances, especially in the first 10 minutes, but they could not reproduce the power, authority and precise passing that had already brought them three trophies over the course of the season, including the Premier League title.

United manager Alex Ferguson told ITV afterwards: "I think the first goal was a killer for us ... in fairness, we were beaten by a better team."

It's not quite what he was hoping for, but T.J. Grant has booked his next Ultimate Fighting Championship bout.

The Cole Harbour mixed martial arts fighter signed a contract late Tuesday night to face Rory Markham on June 20 in Las Vegas as part of The Ultimate Fighter 9, a Spike television series. The bout will likely be part of the undercard.

Grant had initially been slated to face Martin Kampmann (15-2) on the main card of the same event, but Kampmann backed out after his manager initially agreed to the fight.

"He's coming off a really big win and I really don't have as big a name as he wants," said Grant. "I can see where he was coming from. I'm new to UFC and an unknown to mainstream fans, so he thought the risk outweighed the reward."

Grant won his debut against Ryo Chonan at UFC 97 last month. He was eager to face Kampmann on the main card, as Spike's live coverage would have put him in the spotlight. The undercard might not provide the same opportunity.

Markham is 16-5 with 11 knockouts and is 1-1 in UFC bouts. His fights don't usually last long, win or lose.

Grant, 14-2, took a week of vacation to the Dominican Republic after winning last month's UFC debut. His manager, Scott MacLean, was getting married, and Grant was happy to get a much-needed week away to relax.

"I haven't really gotten to do something like that for the past few years, so I made sure I did," Grant said. "I needed it. I got right back to training when I got back. I feel good."

Cole Harbour's T.J. Grant, seen here grappling with Chad Reiner, has signed a contract to face Rory Markham on June 20 in Las Vegas.

Sports in brief

FOOTBALL Dartmouth's Gordon Sawler of the St. Francis Xavier X-Men has signed with the Toronto Argonauts. Sawler, drafted in the fifth round (34th overall) in the CFL draft earlier this month, will be on the field when the Argos open training camp next week in Mississauga, Ont. The six-foot-four, 280-pound offensive guard helped St. F.X. average 168.5 yards per game last season.

BASKETBALL The Dalhousie Tigers have recruited another MacNeil. Trish MacNeil, the younger sister of former Tigers first-team Atlantic University Sport all-star Kate, has committed to the Tigers' women's basketball team. The Halifax native is a long-time member of provincial youth teams and won back-to-back Nova Scotia high school titles with the Citadel Phoenix in 2008 and 2009.

Rainmen look to re-sign coach

The Halifax Rainmen are hoping to wrap up negotiations to bring back head coach Les Berry "soon."

Rainmen owner Andre Levinston has been working on bringing Berry back since the Premier Basketball League season ended in March. Levinston hired the Halifax native in February after firing Rick Lewis 11 games into the season.

"I'm getting a lot of phone calls for this position," Levinston said. "I don't want my summer interrupted by people calling from all over the place trying to get an interview for this job. It's something we've got to make a decision on very soon."

The Halifax Rainmen are working to bring back coach Les Berry, above. Owner Andre Levinston says he expects a decision soon.

Berry's terms of employment in 2009 did not include scouting and recruiting, but Levinston has said he wants that to change if Berry is brought back. That could affect Berry's desire to keep the job from infringing on his family time. The two have been trying to find common ground on that front.

The Rainmen recently listed Berry as a coach in their series of summer camps and tournaments for youth.

"Coach and I are still hammering out some details," said Levinston. "Things look good. We've got some things to work through and we're in discussions now."

Berry posted a 6-3 record after taking over, but was unable to guide the gifted Rainmen to the playoffs.

Mooseheads promote consultant to be assistant general manager

QMJHL The Halifax Mooseheads have promoted consultant Bob (Tipper) LeBlanc to assistant general manager.

The former Saint John Sea Dogs general manager will join Mooseheads GM Cam Russell as part of a revamped management team heading into next week's QMJHL draft.

"He helps my transition run a little smoother," said Russell. "He has the experience of being a past general manager so a lot of questions I have, he's a guy I can ask and bounce ideas off of. I think we'll work well together as a team."

LeBlanc spent a season and a half with the Sea Dogs before resigning in December 2006. He was responsible for bringing

Two new golf programs available

Thousands of Canadian youth will now have the opportunity to be introduced to the game of golf as a part of their elementary school physical education curriculum with the launch of the National Golf in Schools Program.

Developed by Physical and Health Education Canada in partnership with the Royal Canadian Golf Association (RCGA) and the Canadian Professional Golfers' Association (PGA), the National Golf in Schools Program has been designed to give elementary school teachers, regardless of their golf background, the chance to deliver required physical education learning outcomes through the sport of golf.

"The National Golf in Schools Program is a tremendous opportunity to introduce hundreds of thousands of children to the game of golf through the physical education curriculum at Canadian elementary schools," said Scott Simmons, RCGA executive director and CEO. "The program creates a vital link between the education community and the golf community so that teachers, students and parents can gain better access to and familiarity with this wonderful lifetime sport that not only encourages physical activity but a very strong sense of core values."

Provincial golf associations will also offer a variety of Golf in Schools activations, including sending qualified golf professionals to schools, conducting teacher orientations and organizing field trips.

"The Canadian PGA is extremely pleased to be an integral part of the development of the National Golf in Schools curriculum and believe that this program will only further shift Canadian PGA members as the natural enhancer on the pathway to success for these young students, as they progress from the initiation phase to participating at golf facilities staffed by Canadian PGA professionals," stated Lindon Garon, president of the Canadian PGA.

As part of its development, the program was test-piloted at 13 schools across Canada and expects more than 300 schools to sign on for the program in its first year.

Schools interested in participating will be charged $175 for the complete Golf in Schools program package, which includes the learning resource and specially designed child-friendly golf equipment. The RCGA will subsidize the balance of the $475 total program cost.

RCGA Golf Card

The RCGA Golf Card is a card-based rewards program for golfers. With a RCGA Golf Card you earn points called Eagles and Birdies at more than 200 participating golf courses. Those points, in turn, get you a free round of golf with every five rounds played, as well as other free gift vouchers.

The RCGA Golf Card also comes with a 50 per cent off green fee trial voucher for each and every course in the program. These half-price vouchers are intended to reward early season or late season play. As such, they are valid only before or after certain dates early on or later on in the season as determined by each course.

RCGA Golf Card members can also redeem their Air Miles reward miles for free rounds of golf any time they choose.

Travel Maritimes

SPECIAL FEATURES EDITOR: STEPHANIE.BOMBA@METRONEWS.CA

Take a 'stay-cation'

COLIN CHISHOLM
for Metro Halifax

It's not cheap to vacation abroad, and with the recession making things even tougher financially for some, many people could decide to stay closer to home this summer.

But with a multitude of things to do throughout the province and Maritimes this summer, local tourism officials are hoping more people will stick around their city or province and spend their vacation money here.

It's what Nova Scotia tourism officials are calling a "stay-cation" — an attempt to boost revenues for Nova Scotia's tourism industry and encourage people to discover their own province.

"In this economy, people are watching their money more closely," said David Denny, communications adviser for Tourism Nova Scotia. "But people still want a vacation, they still want that time off."

Denny said Nova Scotians will start seeing more television ads directed at them to promote staying home and "exploring their own backyard" instead of travelling to another part of the world.

Some of the ads feature people who live in the province exploring and working in Nova Scotia. He said some of the events highlighted include white water rafting, buying lobster and visiting historical sites.

There are also major events to promote, such as the tall ships festival.

A flight from Halifax to Paris on aircanada.com could cost just under $2,000, depending on when you're flying and the number of stopovers.

When including the cost of hotels, food, and other expenses, the price of a Parisian vacation can add up to even more. Compare that to a vacation around Nova Scotia, and the price becomes far less.

This is something Nova Scotia tourism officials hope to cash in on during this slow period in the economy.

Denny does admit the recession has hit the tourism industry in Nova Scotia, but said that, in general, it is relatively resilient because of its broad appeal.

Make most of road trips

Year after year we see a shift in travel trends. Recently, vacationers have moved away from week long vacations to more affordable three- and four-day getaways. Whether by choice or necessity, 2009 has embraced the ways of the frugal traveller.

Road trips are a great way to stretch a vacation budget and show children the Canadian landscape. No matter which direction you chose to travel in, vacationing families will find an array of things to see and do across Canada this summer.

Here are some tips to help ensure you make the most out of your trip:

Plan ahead. Know your route and plan fun activities along the way — virtually every destination has an official tourism website or Chamber of Commerce highlighting seasonal events to help build your vacation itinerary.

Take your time. Make stops along the way and enjoy the route. Tip: Give each child a journal and disposable camera to record their memories along the way.

Play it safe. Schedule a tune-up to ensure your vehicle is in top shape before hitting the road.

Eat well. Enjoy local foods and pack healthy snacks for the kids. NEWS CANADA

Halifax concerts hot ticket

COLIN CHISHOLM
for Metro Halifax

It's going to be a big summer for Halifax this year, with multiple concerts, festivals and special events planned.

Fact is, it can be hard to keep track of it all.

Some of the big events include two concerts on the Halifax Common — Sir Paul McCartney and Kiss — the tall ships and busker festivals and a slew of other live performances and activities.

With Nova Scotia and Halifax still recovering from the recession, the tourism industry has taken a hit as many people decide to stay home until the economic climate stabilizes.

The number of travellers to Nova Scotia in the first half of 2009 was down, but

"As people come out of the long winter, they're looking for some nice weather and to get out there and enjoy life a little bit."

businesses and tourism officials hope that this busy summer will change that trend.

Tourism Nova Scotia communications adviser David Denny said tourism is still holding its own because it offers a variety of venues, saying big shows like McCartney and Kiss transcend generations and should draw a large diverse crowd.

"This is generally our busy time," Denny said, referring to the summer months. "I wish I had a crystal ball to say what is going to happen, but I think as people come out of the long winter, they're looking for some nice weather and to get out there and enjoy life a little bit."

Denny said people going to these events will also support local restaurants, hotels and shops, which will bring lots of new revenue to the city.

"People may be in town to see Paul McCartney," Denny said. "But with other events going on, they may decide to stick around and check out a few more."

Halifax does face some competition from other areas such as Moncton, which is hosting two mega concerts of its own — Bon Jovi on June 27 and AC/DC Aug. 6.

10 cost-saving tips

Families vacationing on a dime this summer can save a bundle with these 10 cost-saving tips.

1 Free breakfast: Vacationing families can save up to $20 each day by seeking out and taking advantage of complimentary breakfast service at their hotel.

2 Free Internet: Choosing a hotel that offers free Internet allows for easy research of area sights and attractions. WI-Fi Internet capabilities are not always included in room fees.

3 Incentive programs: Take advantage of incentives. Gas rebates and promotional offers are great ways to recoup transportation costs and plump up your spending budget for destination activities. You can learn about cost-saving promotions online at choicehotels.ca.

4 Loyalty rewards: Cash in on loyalty reward programs; they are the gifts that keep on giving. Members of loyalty reward programs earn free night stays, merchant gift cards, gas rebates and more.

Families looking to save money on their vacation this summer should ask the concierge if the hotel offers discounts or coupons.

5 On-site amenities: Look for destinations offering on-site amenities that will both accommodate and entertain your family. An on-site swimming pool or a games library can be a real sanity saver on a rainy vacation day.

6 Free parking: Ample free on-site parking saves travellers a bundle, freeing up funds for family fun.

7 Area attractions and coupons: Take advantage of area festivals; ask the concierge if your hotel offers discounts or coupons to guests visiting area attractions.

8 Hotel promotions: When booking your stay, ask the reservation agent about any current promotions that may be available. Remember: Many discounts are available year-round thanks to business partnerships like those Choice Hotels share with CAA/AAA and Avis rent-a-car.

9 Kids stay free: It's an oldie but a goodie. Many hotels still offer a "Kids Stay Free" program for guests under 18 travelling with a parent.

10 Plan ahead: Many cities become hot-spots for entertainment during the summer months and many hotels offer advance booking discounts, proving a little planning can go a long way in stretching the family travel budget. NEWS CANADA

Spring has sprung, and for many, that also means it's time to break out the paint rollers, dust off that measuring tape and start perusing the homeware catalogues.

Looking for ideas to give your digs a fresh look? We asked Margot Austin, senior design editor for Style At Home, and Tara Dalla-Nora, principal designer of the Toronto-based Inner Luxe, about this season's hottest home design trends.

1 Sunny hues: "I always suggest for spring and summer to do fresh citrus colours, like yellowy-green," says Dalla-Nora. Shy about putting bold colours on walls? Bright yellows are also popular for accent pieces like vases, pillows and lamps.

2 Textured wallpaper: One of the biggest trends for wallpaper has been grasscloth, "Papers with really natural earthy textures — almost fabrics that are backed with paper," says Austin. Grasscloth wallpapers are even available in non-neutral colours such as navy or lavender.

3 Light woods: After years of dark woods, home furnishings are seeing the light again with lighter-coloured woods, such as birch and maple. Another tip: "Lighten up your furniture with metals or by having a few occasional glass pieces in there," says Dalla-Nora.

4 Rough-hewn edge: "I am seeing a really strong trend toward things that look handmade, a little more primitive in construction," says Austin. Referencing either a factory or an old schoolhouse is a popular look that can be achieved with oversized clocks or large pendant lights that look as though they came off a factory floor.

5 Ethnic-inspired prints: "Ikut prints are quite popular right now, as well as a lot of prints inspired by, say, Indian traditional textile-making, like block prints," says Austin. Her tip for incorporating prints into your home: Buy a length of fabric, wrap it around a pre-stretched artist's canvas, and you've got a unique piece of art to hang on your walls.

6 Retro with a modern twist: "You don't want to go too overboard with retro, but adding a couple of retro elements is always really nice," says Dalla-Nora. She suggests pairing a few pieces of furniture from the '60s or '70s with more modern pieces, or using fabrics with a retro geometric pattern.

7 Bring the indoors outdoors: "As Canadians, the first sign of summer, we want to get outside and live outside," says Austin. She's seen a rise in fully-furnished spaces in yards, from outdoor kitchens — equipped with fridge and sink — to outdoor fireplaces.

"It also speaks to the trend of really making use of the space you already own," she adds. "Who needs a cottage if you can make your backyard function as if it's a retreat?"

A long, hard search for a good mat

HomeScape

Sylvia Putz

metronews.ca/homescape

Do you wince when you see grimy kitchen mats? And if you decide to get a newer model for your home (or a friend's home), do you wince again when you survey the uninspiring assortment of mats at the local houseware store?

I don't know about you, but the images of ducks done up with blue ribbon are just a little cutesy for me.

What to do? Many of the kitchen mats currently available lack a certain style quotient, to put it mildly, but they may save your back and prevent your legs from aching as you do your kitchen chores, especially on hard tile floors. Moreover, these mats

After looking around a little, our columnist was able to find many ugly kitchen mats, but — surprise — a few very attractive ones came out of the woodwork too.

will soak up water drips and hold scraps of peelings or crumbs that fall to the floor. This way you can shake out the mat rather than walking through the wet mess and spreading it all over the kitchen.

They're a fantastic idea, but do they have to be so ugly?

Well, after looking around a little more thoroughly, I found many more ugly ones, but — surprise — a few very attractive ones.

One product I noticed was a natural-looking woven vinyl mat, complete with elegant woven edges. There are a few different manufacturers, but one of the most price worthy rugs I saw are from a Toronto-based company called The Tate Group, formerly MacFABhome. They can be bought at selected retail locations across Canada — info@macfabhome.com or info@thetategroup.com to inquire about retail locations.

These rugs range in price from $24 to $300 depending on the size of the mat, and are backed by cushy rubber backings. There are six standard rectangular sizes, which run from the smallest (door-mat) at 20" x 28", to the largest (large area rug), at 54" x 96". Also included in the selection is a hall runner, which measures 28" x 84".

The natural woven look of these mats come in several different textures, including a coarser weave, a tighter weave, and several different patterned weaves. And they come in a variety of muted colours, including reed, terracotta, black walnut, twig, sand, midnight and praline. Check TheTateGroup.com to take a look at the colours, or better yet visit a retail location to check the look and feel more closely.

I noticed other similar synthetic products, such as the Chilewich mats from a New York-based company. They're equally lovely with more of a selection in terms of colour and pattern, and the mats can be customized to fit a specific space. However, be prepared for a higher price tag; they range from $360 for a 3' x 5' mat, and up to $600 for a 5' x 10' mat. Bindings around the outside are extra.

They're carried at retailers like Elte in Toronto. Check chilewich.com for more information about other retailers across Canada.

Of course, natural mats of grass and straw can be lovely as well, and they might do just about anywhere else. But not in a kitchen. Cleaning is a necessity here, and natural grass or straw just doesn't stand up to the abuse. Vinyl rugs are water and stain resistant, and can be used both indoors and outdoors since they are resilient to mould and mildew. They can be wet mopped and vacuumed, and tough stains can be treated with mild detergent and a little elbow grease.

Just don't put them on a heated floor, or you may have a goopy mess on your hands.

Research key when hiring a contractor

JON TATTRIE
for Metro Canada

When you hire a contractor to renovate your home, you are going to spend a lot of time with him and his crew, and even longer with the final work. Choosing the right contractor is critical.

Michael Gough of the Canadian Home Builders Association says homeowners want to know the project will be done properly, on time and at the agreed-upon price.

The best way to ensure that is to get a contractor you can trust. Check with friends and family for recommendations. Your local Home Builders Association will have a list, or look at ads and the phone book.

"When you locate contractors based only on advertisements, you need to take extra care to get and follow up on references," Gough cautions. Get at least three past-customer references — and call them.

"Some consumers wonder about the value of contractor-provided customer references, assuming they won't be given the names of dissatisfied customers," says Gough. "While there is certainly some truth to this, don't underestimate what you can learn about a contractor, even when talking with satisfied customers."

Next up is the interview stage. Get your contractor's history: How long she's been in business, her experience doing jobs like yours, how her company operates (for example, do they have their own staff or regular subcontractors?) and get a ballpark estimate on the cost and time.

Before hiring a contractor, you should check their references as well as for proof of business liability insurance, Workers' Compensation coverage, bonding and business registration, advises Michael Gough of the Canadian Home Builders Association.

"If you find you are not comfortable talking with them, or they are not able to answer your questions adequately, they are probably not the right contractor for you," advises Gough. "Don't hire them."

When you've got your contractor, check for proof of business liability insurance, Workers' Compensation coverage or equivalent accidental injury insurance, proof of bonding and/or licensing and proof of proper business registration. Why? If you've got a fly-by-night operation not properly insured and it goes wrong, you're on the hook.

"What would happen if someone you hired accidentally damaged your property or the property of one of your neighbours? Or if someone was injured? Your contractor could end up costing you money," Gough says.

The Canadian Mortgage and Housing Corporation warns it can take two to three weeks for a contractor to prepare an estimate. Make sure the contractor provides you with a construction schedule before work starts, so you have a clear idea how things will unfold, it says.

Spray Foam Insulation

*The Best Choice for Smart
Renovators, Builders
& Homeowners*

Spray foam insulation will help reduce the heating costs of any building by up to 50%. Did you know that most of a building's energy loss is due to air leakage? Spray foam prevents heat from passing through walls and insulates where conventional insulation can't. Air leakage costs you money, and applying spray foam insulation will help stop your heating dollars being lost through your home's walls.

New construction, retrofits and renovations are all ideal for spray foam insulation.

We offer several types of spray foam insulation, all approved for use in Canada and by building inspectors in Nova Scotia. From attic spaces, joist pockets and wall cavities to exterior walls, basements and foundations, we have the right foam to suit your needs.

The benefits of spray foam insulation are not limited to energy and heat savings.

It can help control dust and pollen as well. As a non-fibrous, non-toxic material that does not emit any VOCs, spray foam is the ideal insulation choice for individuals with asthma and other respiratory conditions. As opposed to conventional insulation, which can be a home for rodents, insects and a collection place for dust (all of which contribute to poor indoor air quality), spray foam is a barrier to allergens, dust, and is not conducive to pests due to its structural rigidity.

Spray foam insulation qualifies for government funding.

Have you had your energy audit yet? Once you have an audit completed, you may be eligible to receive funding to upgrade the energy efficiency of your home, including insulation. Many of our clients use the funding they receive to upgrade their insulation to spray foam.

Choose rhubarb stalks that are firm and crisp. If plucking from your backyard, twist off stalks rather than cutting. Pick slender stalks — one should yield about 1/2 cup (125 ml) chopped.

Crazy over this crumble

Easy as pie? Actually it's easier, and it saves some extra calories and fat

À la carte

It's spring, and the appearance of local farmers' markets signals the beginning of the best time to eat seasonally.

When you shop at farmers' markets, you get the healthy benefit of eating foods at their nutritional peak and at their tastiest; as well as reducing your carbon footprint and supporting local growers. Check with your provincial association and harvestcanada.com to find your closest market.

Recognized by its large, green elephant ear-like leaves and long stalks, rhubarb is one of the earliest crops to push its way out of the ground, usually found until July.

Rhubarb Strawberry Crumble

A crumble is simply fruit topped with a mixture of sugar, flour, butter and often nuts, which bakes into a crisp topping that offers much of the satisfaction of a pie with a lot less work, fewer calories and less fat. You can substitute many kinds of fruit for the rhubarb strawberry mix, or use all rhubarb. Just figure on about 5 cups (1.25 L) sliced fruit, peeled if desired, and add sugar and lemon juice according to the fruit's sweetness. For juicy fruits such as peaches and berries, add 2 tbsp (30 ml) more flour to fruit mixture. Makes four to six servings.

INGREDIENTS:

Topping:

- 1/3 cup (75 ml) sliced almonds

Great recipe for spring

In this recipe you can substitute many kinds of fruit.

- 1/3 cup (75 ml) all-purpose flour
 - 1/3 cup (75 ml) lightly packed brown sugar
 - Pinch salt
 - 3 tbsp (45 ml) cold butter, cut into 1/4 inch (5 mm) pieces
- Fruit Mixture:
- 4 cups (1 L) sliced rhubarb (1-1/2 lbs/750 g), about 1/2 inch (1 cm) slices
 - 1 cup (250 ml) halved (or quartered if large) straw-

- berries
- 2 tbsp (30 ml) each: all-purpose flour, brown sugar and granulated sugar
- 1 tbsp (15 ml) fresh lemon juice

METHOD:

Preheat oven to 350 F (180 C). While oven is heating, spread almonds in a rimmed baking sheet. Bake until just golden and fragrant, 6 to 8 minutes.

Do not allow them to brown.

In small food processor, place almonds, flour, brown sugar and salt, process until a fine meal. Transfer to a bowl. With fingers work in the butter until mixture is very crumbly. Refrigerate 15 minutes or up to 2 days (covered and refrigerated until needed).

Butter a 6 cup (1.5 L) baking dish. In a large bowl, combine rhubarb and strawberries. Combine flour, brown sugar and granulated sugar; sprinkle over fruit and toss well. Sprinkle with lemon juice and toss again. Spread fruit evenly in baking dish and spread topping over all.

Bake until fruit is bubbling and top is browned, 40 to 50 minutes. (If top is browning too quickly, cover with foil.) Serve warm or at room temperature.

Beauty of the blend

The lexicon of liquor has many baffling entries, some of which need more explanation than an episode of Lost.

Take the term "blend." Consumers are just fine associating it with scotch, but in our single varietal world there seems to be a stigma attached to the idea that wines can be a mix of different grapes.

If you believe that, consider this. The concept of blending grape personalities is the foundation of some of the finest wine regions on Earth: Think France's Bordeaux and Champagne, Italy's Veneto and Portugal's Douro Valley.

Some grapes naturally go together. Others may seem unlikely but create magic in the bottle. The 2007 Hardy's Stamp Series Chardonnay Semillon ($9.95 - $11.99) from Australia is a good example. You wouldn't think the pair would make a likely couple, but the chard offers a rounded, buttery flavour that's massaged nicely by the slight honeyed flow of the semillon.

How about a marriage of chardonnay, muscat and chenin blanc? The 2007 Folie à Deux Ménéage à Trois White ($17.99 - $19.98) is a jazzy Californian combo that shows lots of citrus, melon and ripe exotic fruit flavours while perfectly illustrating that the art is definitely in the blend.

Prices reflect the range across the country. Some products may not be available in all provinces.

Peter Rockwell is the everyman's wine writer, working in the liquor industry for more than 25 years and travelling the globe looking for something to fill his glass and put into words.

BAREFOOT FOR A CAUSE

In 2001, a heart-broken Bilaal Rajan saw photographs of people whose lives had been taken or ruined by the earthquake in Gujarat, India. The four-year-old boy sold Clementines door to door in his southern Ontario neighbourhood to raise money for the victims.

"It truly wasn't fair that these people, just because they lived in different places, should have to suffer such tragedy," he says. He saw they needed someone to help them. "I came back to myself here in Canada and I realized that that person could be me."

Rajan has since raised millions of dollars to help orphans, build a school in Tanzania, assist people hit by hurricanes in Haiti and the tsunami in South-East Asia. Rajan is still only 12.

Last month, he spent a week walking barefoot to raise money and awareness for poor kids around the world. Thousands of people in ten countries joined in. "I had about four blisters, seven spider bites, I stepped on some glass, I almost stepped on a nail, but I guess that's life, right?" he says.

"The thought that carried me through the week was, if others can do it for their whole lives, why can't I do it for a week?"

His first trip abroad was to South-East Asia after the 2004 tsunami, followed by a trip to Malawi in 2005.

Rajan is excited about his latest project, Sudokuhub.com. The web fundraiser is to be launched late summer or fall and will let players turn games into food. For every number solved, a package of "plumpy nuts," a healthy snack, is donated to a malnourished child.

Beyond that, he wants to continue

Bilaal Rajan, has written a book, founded an organization and is a child ambassador for UNICEF Canada.

being an activist. "As a career, I'd like to be an astronaut and a neurosurgeon," he says.

Bilaal Rajan has packed a lot into 12 years. He's written a book, Making Change: Tips from an Underage Overachiever, and turned that into a website, Makingchangenow.com, to reach his goal of getting one million kids involved in their communities.

He founded an organization, Bilaalrajan.com, to focus his fundraising efforts. He's a child ambassador for UNICEF Canada, was named a junior citizen of the year and numerous other honours. Oh, and he speaks English, French, some Spanish, Mandarin and Swahili.

Spelling his way to victory

There was nothing fishy about the way Zakhar Husak performed last weekend. The home-schooled Husak correctly spelled "caviar" to clinch his victory in the primary division of the Spelling Bee of Canada 22nd Annual Championship at the Delta Chelsea in Toronto on Sunday. The eight-year-old beat out 28 children, ages six to eight, to take the title.

Zakhar won $1,000, a trophy and a number of other prizes. Also placing in the annual bee's primary division were Niu Niu Wang, from Windsor, Ont., in second place, and Toronto's Neherika Nair winning third place. Both are eight years old.

Kid wears his pride on his shirt

An eight-year-old Canadian boy named Eric is on top of the world after his t-shirt design was picked from hundreds of submissions around the country to represent Canadian pride.

His shirt, titled Proud to Be Canadian, shows a red-and-white maple leaf background with a cute cartoon beaver smiling and holding a hockey stick.

Proceeds from sales of the shirt he designed will go to provide safe, fun, healthy activities at school for children in kindergarten through the seventh grade, showing that little Eric not only has talent but a heart of gold as well.

Hungry cat a lifesaver

Twelve-year-old Bilaal Rajan isn't the only one helping others. Angela and Peter Papdimitriou always knew their cat Nemo was a special gift in their lives but they never could have expected Nemo would give them back the gift of life.

Nemo has made a habit of waking up Angela and Peter for breakfast every morning with a warm, furry cuddle. One morning last September, Angela awoke to find Nemo behaving far more frantically than usual.

Angela tried to get her husband's attention to see if he knew what Nemo was getting at when she discovered Peter wasn't breathing and didn't have a heartbeat. Paramedics arrived and successfully restarted Peter's heart, telling Angela that if they had arrived even a few minutes later, Peter might not have made it.

Angela credits Nemo with saving her husband's life. "That morning if he hadn't been so persistent and woken me, it could have been too late. Nemo is a little angel," Angela said.

Peter had open-heart surgery that day and is back home in stable condition thanks to the skilled doctors and the cute, pudgy feline cuddle-lover who saved his life.

Vincent Cassel brings sexy back with La Nuit de l'Homme

By RITA SILVAN
Editor-in-Chief

What could be more seductive than hot French actor Vincent Cassel in a black tuxedo, descending the steps of the Grand Palais while several alluring models aim to slow him down?

Cassel is the face of the new Yves Saint Laurent fragrance for men, La Nuit de l'Homme. And on the night of the fragrance launch, appropriately set at the Musée de l'Homme in Paris, there was an audible gasp from normally jaded fashion editors as the perfume commercial was shown. Shot by Cassel's friend Gaspar Noé, the video perfectly captures a city in which people aren't too tired to have sex. More than once. A day. Taken a bit by surprise by the guests' reaction to his unconventional sex appeal, Cassel remarked: "This video refers to the Paris touch, which is a good thing. You can be louche, as long as you do it with style and elegance!"

The best way for a man to seduce a woman, he says, is "to keep a bit of distance but also have a straightforward attitude." And the secret to his relationship with bombshell Monica Bellucci? "Freedom — and don't take things too seriously."

Marilyn Manson

Album: The High End of Low

Label: Interscope/Universal

THE DEBATE

HAS already started among Marilyn Manson fans. Has our goth-rock shock trooper reformed his old toxic self? Or is he merely slowing down his slide into a form of middle age introspective goo that even parents can find secretly listenable ... sometimes ... after dark ... like, way after the kids have gone to bed. Who cares? Listen to this album for what it is and not what you want Marilyn to be. He delivers a stylishly sophisticated album that's as much Bowie-esque culture croon as it is lyrically offensive. There are parts that seem more manufactured than industrial, especially the single "Arma-godd'n-mother-fkin-geddon. But there are also frighteningly intense scenes of self-doubt. Yes, Marilyn does have a heart. No doubt, the old fans will want to rip it out.

This is a schizophrenic collection of folk, adult

Henry Poole Is Here

After being diagnosed with a terminal illness, Henry (Luke Wilson) buys a home in his childhood neighborhood and holes up to live out his last days alone. But that proves difficult when a neighbor (Adriana Baraza) sees the face of Jesus in a water stain on his wall, and seemingly miraculous occurrences begin. Radha Mitchell, George Lopez, Rachel Seiferth and Morgan Lily also star in this inspiring but not cloying 2008 dramedy. 10 PM on M1

Edward Scissorhands

In this visually stunning 1990 Tim Burton film, Johnny Depp managed to squeeze tears out of viewers' eyes as the young man created from bits and pieces by a nameless inventor (Vincent Price). Unfortunately, the old guy dies, leaving Edward all alone — until the Avon lady (Dianne Wiest) comes calling. She brings him home to meet the family, and he becomes the toast of the town. Mel and Oksana's new life

EVERYDAY LIFE So how do the original Sexiest Man Alive and his musician girlfriend spend their time together? Work, work, work, say family and friends — and then a little low-profile playtime, people.com reports.

By day, Mel Gibson, 53, and Oksana Grigorieva, who is pregnant with Gibson's eighth child, are hard at work at their respective careers — Gibson tending to film projects at his Santa Monica office while Grigorieva keeps busy making music at her house in Sherman Oaks, Calif.

Oaks, Calif.

"(Oksana) spent the last nine months locked up in a studio," her mother Lyudmila Chernukha, a retired music teacher, tells People of her daughter's collection of new songs — all of which Oksana, 39, wrote, arranged and sang herself. Once work is over for the couple and the school bell has rung for Grigorieva's son, Alexander, 11, it's family time. The musician and her son will often meet up with Gibson — who has initiated divorce proceedings with his wife, Robyn — at his office or his Malibu home, sometimes dropping by a Russian restaurant that serves dishes from Grigorieva's homeland: Borscht, chicken Kiev and sturgeon.

"It (seems) very important to Oksana that Mel and her son bond," says a source. "Mel is fun to be around and great with kids."

At the end of the evening, the two typically returns to their separate homes so Grigorieva can get her son, whose dad is actor Timothy Dalton, off to a local school in the mornings. "She gets on well with Timothy Dalton, he is the father of her son after all," says Grigorieva's mother. "They parted on good terms and they see each other a lot."

Prince Harry's good deed

FEEL-GOOD When he visits New York this weekend, Prince Harry has more to focus on than action on the polo field and fundraising for his Sentebale charity for African children. He'll pay special attention to the sacrifices made by servicemen and women around the world, people.com reports.

With this in mind, he has helped facilitate a dream trip to the U.S. for a young British marine who lost both his legs in a blast in Afghanistan. Commando

Joe Townsend, 21, was horrifically injured when he stepped on an anti-tank mine in Helmand province last year. Harry, 24, was serving in the same region (though they were not together) at the time.

While they are not travelling together to Manhattan, the pair will meet up privately during the prince's two-day stay. The veteran will join the prince on a tour of the facilities of a post-traumatic stress disorder treatment clinic at the Veterans Affairs Medical Center in Manhattan.

The original idea came from New York Mets owner Fred Wilpon, who approached royal staff and said he would pay for the trip. Harry — having heard of what he went through — nominated war hero Townsend. The New York visit will be Harry's first official tour to the U.S.

Evangeline's accidental diss?

LOOSE TONGUE Did Lost's Evangeline Lilly accidentally diss Angelina Jolie? Asked in the new issue of Women's Health which Hollywood A-listers she admires most, Lilly says Jolie, usmagazine.com reports. Why? "No one knows that woman; she's a complete ice queen, which is perfect," she explains. "Why should she be any more? She doesn't owe us anything." Lilly adds that Lost producers have told her that she hasn't picked up on the opportunity to become a big movie star like Jolie.

"It frustrates (them) that they've given me this chance to become the next Angelina," she says. "Sure, I'd love to be her, but just the humanitarian side."

Halle's online chat escapes

CREEPY Halle Berry finds fame so lonely, she has used the Internet to find friends, femalefirst.co.uk reports. The actress admits in the past she has used websites to meet people and have "normal" conversations, away from the superficiality of Hollywood. But she insists she stopped short of ever romancing a cyber companion.

Berry explains, "I never went so far as a date. But I've gone online and pretended to be someone else, in an attempt to have some anonymity. I've tried, many times, to have a normal conversation when celebrity wasn't a part of it. Sometimes it worked and at others it became a little weird. The reason I did it was I wanted to remember what it was like to have a real, honest exchange with someone and to be treated normally."

Celebrity uproar over Twitter TV show

PROTEST Demi Moore and Ashton Kutcher

have threatened to close their Twitter accounts if bosses of the social networking site enter into a proposed agreement to launch a reality TV show, femalefirst.co.uk reports.

Hollywood trade magazine Daily Variety reports the San Francisco-based company has partnered with TV producers on an unscripted show, in which fans try to track down celebrities via the Internet — and the news has upset Tinseltown's leading tweeters.

In a post on Monday, Kutcher wrote, "It's all fun and games until somebody gets stalked."

And his wife added, "I hope this isn't true — if it is our Twitter time may come to a quick and sad end."

But Twitter co-founder Biz Stone insists there's "no official Twitter TV show" and the news relates to a "lightweight, non-exclusive agreement" he has with TV producers.

Brolin headed for doghouse?

OOPS Looks like Josh Brolin may be getting himself into trouble in Louisiana again, but this time it will be with his wife, Diane Lane, and not with the law.

While in New Orleans to film Jonah Hex, Brolin was spotted "getting cozy" with a young woman at several area nightspots before surfacing at 7 a.m., according to In Touch. "Josh looked like he hadn't slept at all and she was wearing the same outfit as the night before and looked embarrassed," a source tells the magazine.

Hef looking to off-load Playboy?

BACKUP PLAN Hugh Hefner is reportedly looking to unload his floundering Playboy empire, and is looking to Virgin's Richard Branson to buy the property.

According to the New York Post, Hefner is looking for $300 million US for the company, which has lost $13 million already this year.

"Everyone says he'll never let go, that he'll take it with him to the grave," a source tells the paper, while a Playboy spokesperson says that though no offers have been made, Hefner would "listen to proposals that could create value for all of our shareholders."

Metro Recipe of the Day

Teriyaki Lamb Chops

INGREDIENTS:

- 6 scallions
- 2 tbsp (25 ml) sesame seeds
- 1/4 cup (175 ml) reduced-salt soy sauce
- 2 tbsp (25 ml) cider vinegar
- 2 tbsp (25 ml) clear honey
- 1 small garlic clove, finely chopped
- 3/4 tsp (4 ml) ground ginger
- 8 bone-in lamb loin chops, trimmed
- 1/2 lb (250 g) Chinese vermicelli
- 4 carrots
- 1 red pepper
- 1/2 of 1 can (398 ml) whole baby corn, drained
- 1 1/2 tsp (7 ml) cornstarch

METHOD:

1. Cut 2 scallions into thin slices and rest into 1 1/2-in. (4-cm) pieces. Toast sesame seeds in nonstick frying pan, 3 minutes. Remove from heat. Stir in soy sauce, vinegar, honey, garlic, ginger and sliced scallions.
2. Roll narrow end of chops into medallions and secure with toothpicks. Place in baking dish and pour in soy sauce mixture. Cover and refrigerate 1 hour.

3. Cook noodles according to package directions. Drain. Cut carrots and pepper into matchsticks and blanch in enough water to cover, 3 minutes. Add remaining scallions and corn. Blanch until vegetables are crisp-tender, about 2 minutes. Drain and toss with noodles.
4. Preheat broiler. Remove chops from marinade; pour marinade into small pot. Broil chops 5 in. (12 cm) from heat until done to taste, 4 minutes per side for medium. Transfer to platter, remove toothpicks and keep warm. Bring marinade to boil. Cook, stirring, 2 minutes. Dissolve cornstarch in 1/3 cup (75 ml) water and whisk into marinade. Boil over medium-high heat, whisking, until sauce thickens, 2 minutes. Toss half of sauce with noodles, drizzle remainder over chops and serve.
